In some countries, including the United States, a company can administer "drug tests" to employees, even if they do not operate machinery (such as pilots, truck drivers or crane operators). Do you think companies in Canada should be able to administer "drug tests" to any employee now that marijuana is legal?

In Canada, an expungement order compels police forces, federal departments or agencies to destroy or remove any judicial record of a conviction. Thinking about this, do you agree or disagree with the federal government providing expungement orders to people convicted of simple possession of marijuana (possession for personal use with no intent to traffic)?
